Looking Forward

As we approach the end of the summer, it always seems like life returns to some sort of normalcy. I have always loved the summer months. I guess that is a holdover from school days, but Summer has never been a time when the usual things happen. It is always the unusual and unpredictable that makes summer what it is. Lynne and I have long since been free from the confines of vacationing while school is out, yet more often than not, we vacation in the summer. I guess it just becomes a habit. Traffic patterns are abnormal in the summer. Television and other forms of entertainment are different in the summer. And, there are all of the opportunities to spend time in water. Pools, lakes and Oceans all become favorite places to hang out. Yes, I believe that the unusual and unpredictable months of summer are good for our lives. The extra-ordinary seasons of life make the ordinary more interesting. I am really excited about the Lake Party this Saturday, like an exclamation point on the end of the church summer.

But the fall quickly approaches. Children will be back in school, and thus the traffic patterns will return to normal. Vacations will end, bringing social and entertainment patterns back to normal, and football will once again be a staple of life. Church life will reawaken as well. We will soon be manning a Fallfest booth, collecting clothing for Mike’s Kids, and bringing stores of food in for the winter needs of the local food pantry. Thanksgiving will quickly be upon us followed by the wonderful season of Advent. The lazy crazy hazy days of Summer will soon be just a fleeting a memory, as the activities of life and the Church warm up to a fevered pitch. We have missed many of you through the vacation months, and are prayerful that you will all return safely to the fold on Sunday mornings, here at Sachse Christian Church.

Blessings, Hal
